

Tabourie: Castaway Holiday Units

The Castaway holiday units were built by Fred James when the lease he held over the land on which the cottages on the headland were situated, was not renewed and he was ordered to remove the cottages.

He sought compensation for the loss of the lease and with this he built the units, to continue to accommodate the people who used to stay at the cottages. Interestingly he used the original nameplates of four of the cottages to place at the entrance of each of the four units.

The units are now owned by Carolyn and Phillip Williams, who over time have renovated the units but have tried to maintain the original 60's vibe of the building.
